Approved by: Uksnøy, Øystein

Uksnøy & Co AS is committed to providing external and internal costumers through the use of a QA management system in compliance with applicable standards and legislation. The company's QA system strives for compliance with ISO9001:2008, the international standard for quality management systems. Continuous improvement is achieved by improving operations through discussions with clients and through collaboration.

Uksnøy & Co AS is committed to providing external and internal customers with a superior level of service through the use of a QA management system in compliance with applicable standards and specifications.

- Continuously improve our operations in dialogue with clients and by working together to review, develop and enhance our QA system.
- Quality is a line management responsibility. Line supervisors and managers shall show full commitment and participation to Total Quality Management.
- The management system is applicable to all employees and third parties working at Uksnøy & Co sites.
- TQM is a continuous improvement process. Each and every employee is encouraged to participate actively in this process through all available communication systems.
- The company shall assure training to all employees so they can perform their individual quality assurance tasks to their fullest potential.
- Effective control mechanisms, including audits and reviews, are established to objectively evaluate the adequacy of the company's quality management system.
- Management of change to operational processes

Each and every employee is expected to be equally committed and dedicated to achieving Total Quality Management throughout the company.

We expect our employees to maintain high standards in everything they do for our company and while serving our clients.
